

Bryan D. Carlson, FASLA

Throughout his career Bryan has promoted the achievement of extraordinary planning and landscape architecture. He brings a passion for the spirit of design and extensive experience to his work, gained from hundreds of diverse projects worldwide.

Bryan received his Bachelor of Landscape Architecture degree in 1973 from the University of Minnesota and is registered in numerous states.

In early 2000 he established his own practice with projects from Japan to Costa Rica, including Kyoto University, Mayo Clinic, Wells Fargo, Guidant, Peninsula Papagayo Resort and the University of Minnesota Landscape Arboretum.

Prior to establishing his practice Bryan was a Design Principal and Senior Vice President at Ellerbe Becket and Managing Director of Ellerbe Becket's Tokyo office. His work with Ellerbe Becket included two new university campuses in Japan, Kingdom Centre in Saudi Arabia, and numerous projects with Mayo Clinic and Indiana University. Bryan's work has won more than 2 dozen awards for his clients including The Boggy Creek Gang Camp, Eustis, FL, Mayo Clinic, Jacksonville, FL and Scottsdale, AZ, Kochi University and Nara Institute for Science and Technology in Japan and the East Texas Medical Center in Athens, TX.

Bryan continues to be involved with the University of Minnesota where he periodically participates on juries and mentors students.

Some of his most rewarding work has been his volunteer work with the Boggy Creek Gang Camp in Eustis, Florida where he master planned the camp and helped coordinate the design work of more than 130 different firms, agencies and contractors in the camp's creation. The camp serves the needs of chronically ill children from around the world. Carlson continues to volunteer his time in support of the camp, "It's about celebrating life".
